More than enough

It was the first day of autumn and the cupboard at the squirrel house was almost bare.
There was just enough for breakfast.

“Eat up, Anele,” said Mum.
“Today’s a busy day.”

WE'RE GOING TO COLLECT ACORNS.

She scooped up a few baskets, Anele too, and scurried out into the brisk, cool air.

The sun was shining and the leaves on the trees were just beginning to change into the yellows, oranges and reds of the new season.

“Looks like everyone has the same idea, Mum,” said Anele as she stopped to watch the activity below.

There was a certain busyness in the forest already.

Mum darted down the tree,
baskets and Anele in tow.

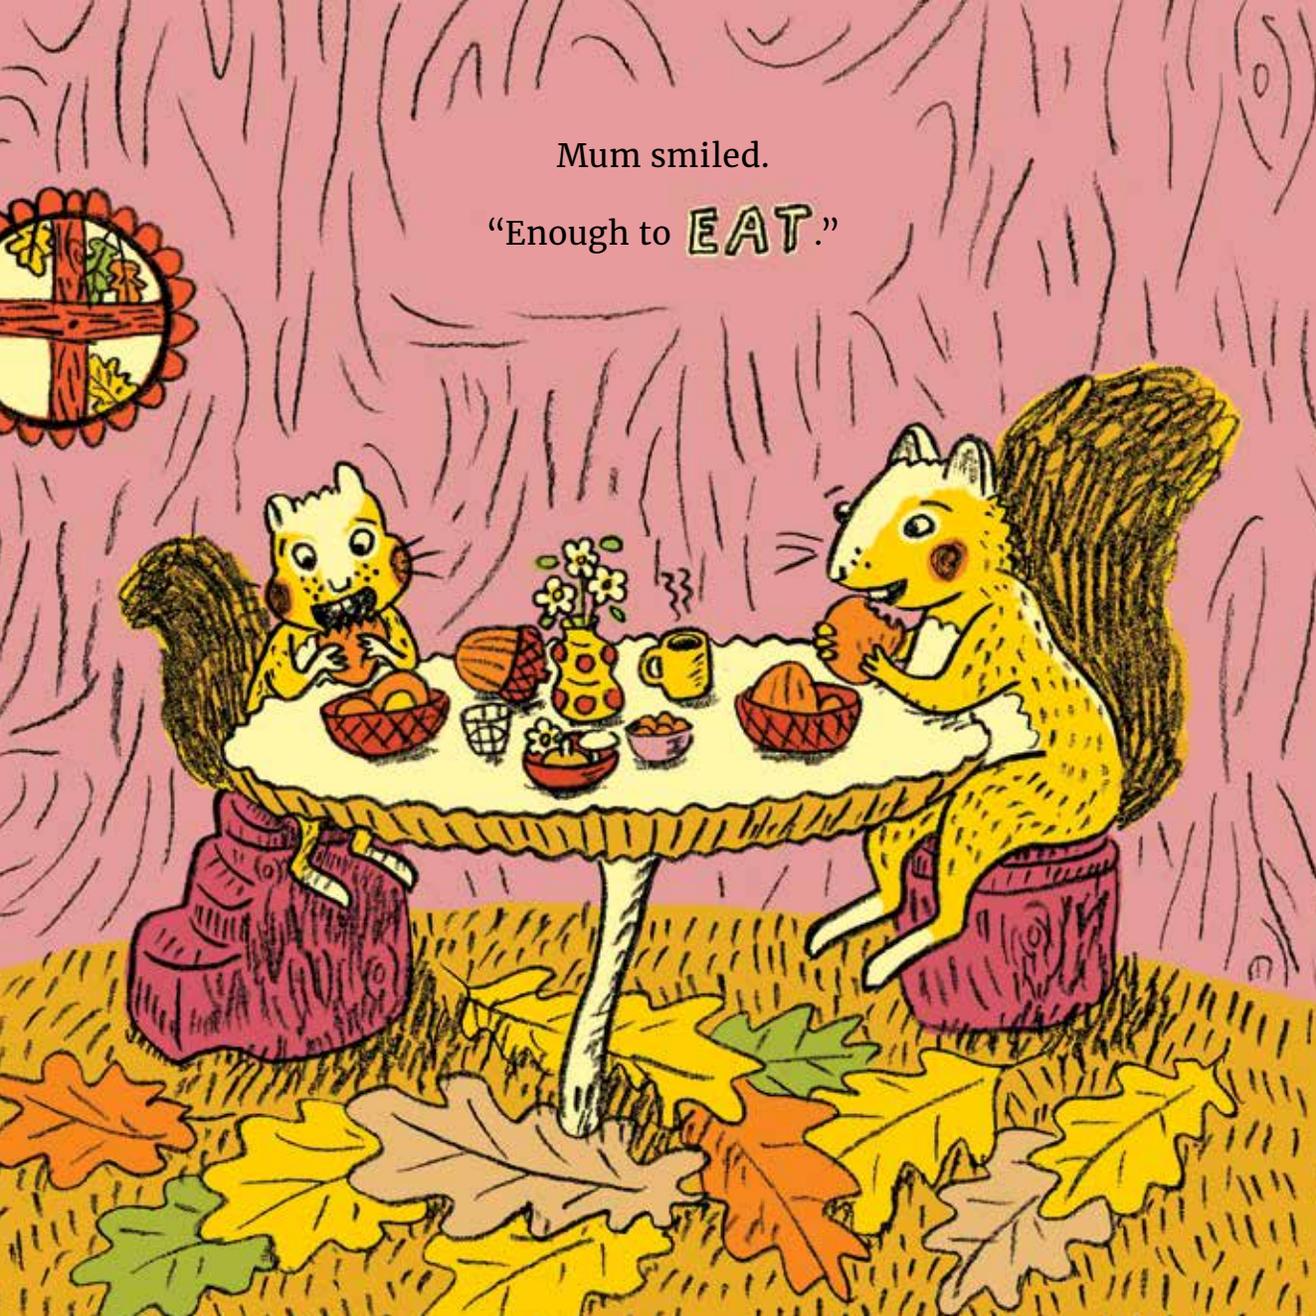

*“How many acorns
do we need?”* asked Anele
as she foraged on the forest floor.

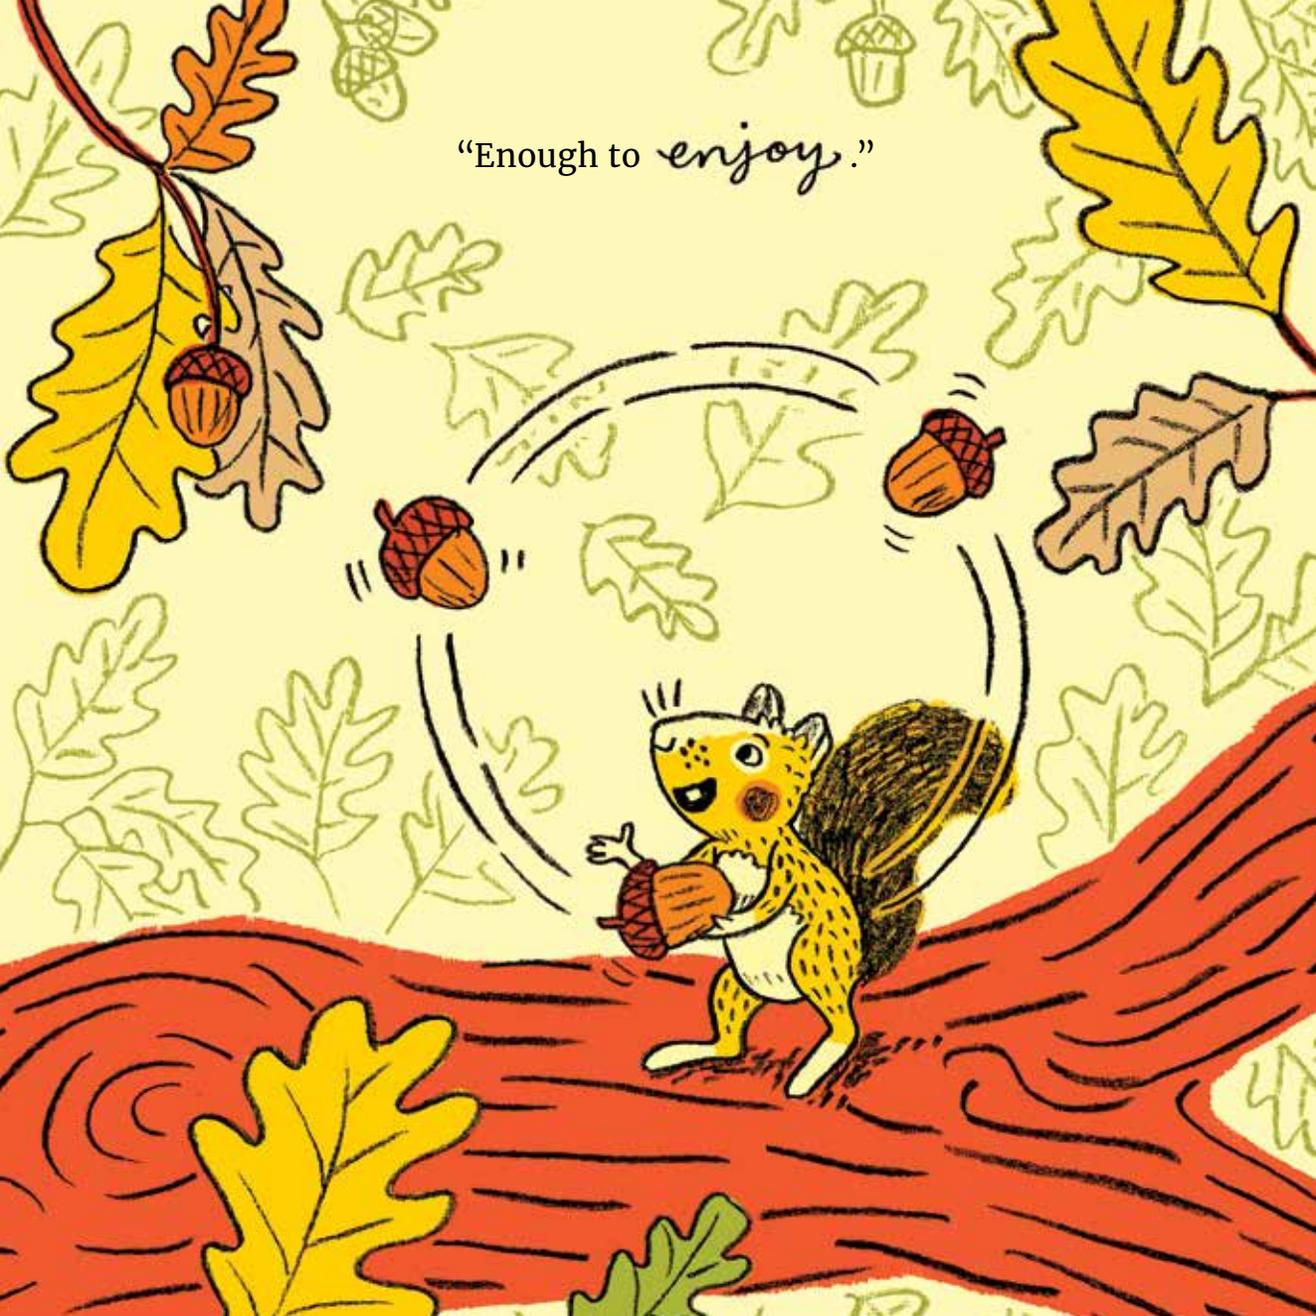

Mum smiled.

“Enough to EAT.”

"Enough to share."

"Enough to save."

“Enough to GROW –
for the years and years and years to come.”

“So we’ll always have enough?”
asked Anele.

“More than enough, Anele,
more than enough.”

Anele and her mother set out one crisp autumn morning to collect acorns –
not just for the cold winter months ahead but also, as Anele discovers, for the many, many, many years to come.
